2. Prior to April 1951, an old Lithuanian five-story barracks building, about 60 meters long and surrounded by a wire fence, was located between the railroad station and the town of Kupiskis (55°50'N/24°57'E). The installation was heavily occupied by troops who wore red epaulets with undetermined branch-of-service insignia and were armed with carbines only. Troops were also quartered in 5 or 6 private houses opposite the barracks installation, which also contained office rooms. Local residents stated that members of the 1930 class were inducted in the spring of 1951, and that ~~most~~ of them were shipped to the interior of the U.S.S.R.

4. In early 1951, a unit of 250 to 300 troops, organized into three sub-units and referred to as a battalion, was quartered in an installation consisting of an undetermined number of low wooden barracks buildings, horse stables and garages in Veizeyai (54°06'N/23°40'E). The soldiers wore blue-bordered epaulets. The ranking officer was a major who was also known to be the military post commander. When marching out of the installation, the unit was observed to be equipped with rifles, submachine guns, machine guns, disk-shaped magazines, and several [redacted] who wore blue uniforms with [redacted] with rifles and submachine [redacted]
